Dr. Dirk RICHTER, MD

MESSAGE FROM THE ISAPS PRESIDENT

Dear Colleagues and Friends,

I hope you all enjoy a wonderful summer and have a nice holiday.

Usually there is little to report during the summer holidays, but a lot has accumulated:

More tragic deaths after Gluteal Fat Injection

Unfortunately there were again two deaths after gluteal fat augmentation, this time in Germany within one year by the same internist. Together with the German Aesthetic Society (VDAEPC) we urged the ministry to act in an open letter. Here we again pointed out the importance of in-depth plastic surgery training and further education and the increased risks of these operations.

Together with our American colleagues from ASAPS and ASPS as well as IFATS and ISPRES, we have decided on further training modules which will soon be available online. We will also report on our joint findings from the autopsies that our task force was allowed to collect.

It should be noted in advance that the fat must only be applied subcutaneously and that larger cannula should be used.

Lawsuits against breast implant manufacturer

Some 1,000 women in South Korea who had breast enlargement with textured breast implants made by Allergan will file a class action lawsuit against the company because of facing the risk of getting this rare lymphoma.

Last week other affected patients filed lawsuits against Allergan in the USA and United Kingdom.

It remains to be seen that there is no recommendation to prophylactically remove textured breast implants.

BIA-ALCL lymphoma is extremely rare and can be treated very well by capsulectomy in early stages.

As plastic surgeons, we should adhere to these official recommendations and educate our patients and take symptoms such as unilateral swelling and pain seriously.

Oculoplastic Symposium in Atlanta now together with ISAPS

We are especially pleased that the Atlanta Oculoplastic Symposium, which has been well known and highly esteemed for over 20 years and organized by the Southeastern Society of Plastic and Reconstructive Surgeons (SESPRS) can now be co-organized by us. This high-end meeting is a must for everyone who wants to stay up to date in the field of periorbital surgery. This time we have added the latest developments in facelift surgery as an additional component. Here, we will focus in particular on difficult necks and eyebrows with the Auersvald Net.

Exciting innovations taught by top-class faculty like Marc Codner, Glen Jelks, Foad Nahai and André Auersvald. January 23rd in Atlanta! Stay a little longer for the directly following Breast Surgery Symposium and learn all innovations from the Top Breast Surgery Faculty. Thanks also to ASAPS and ASPS for their endorsement.

INTRODUCING GIANLUCA CAMPIGLIO, MD, PHD ISAPS 2nd Vice President

Q: How did your passion for plastic surgery develop?

Campiglio: I have been fascinated by the possibility to repair things since my childhood. Every time one of my toys broke I tried to do my best to repair it. Sometimes also with funny results. This passion easily moved from things to persons during my medical studies. Immediately after my graduation I entered the Post Graduate School of Plastic Surgery in Milan where I got my PhD in stem cells in 2004. At that time I was impressed by how perfect the human body is and how it can heal if properly assisted and guided.

Q: What has been the highlight of your career as a plastic surgeon?

Campiglio: I always loved to think as Plastic Surgery as a medal with two faces: one reconstructive and one aesthetic. You can be a good aesthetic surgeon only if you had a strong reconstructive training and you can do a high level of reconstruction only if you have an aesthetic touch.

Q: How did you first become involved with ISAPS?

Campiglio: I have been involved with ISAPS since 2004. I realized the great opportunities for my profession to join such a prestigious international society. In particular I have been impressed by its great educational program and by the possibility to exchange point of views with colleagues coming from so many different countries. I understood soon that the challenges in our specialty are the same, it does not matter where you practice.

Q: Which upcoming ISAPS event are you most looking forward to?

Campiglio: The ISAPS event in 2019 that I look forward to attend is the first resident and young fellows ISAPS Symposium to be held in Bruges on October 17 during the biennial meeting of the European Association of Aesthetic Plastic Surgery Societies (EASAPS). I share the vision of our current President, Dr. Richter, that young generations of plastic surgeons are the main resource for our specialty and that we have to invest in them scientifically.

Q: As Second Vice President, what do you hope to achieve for ISAPS and its members?

Campiglio: My target is to contribute to re-enforce the leadership of ISAPS in education. For this achievement I count on the energy of the younger generations and on the great experience of the more experienced members. As the poet says, genius is wisdom and youth!

Q: What is one unexpected hobby or passion that you share?

Campiglio: I love martial arts and fighting sports since I was a teenager. I practiced many of them including Aikido and Tai Chi Chuan but the one that I preferred was Savate, developed in France and Italy at the end of the eighteenth century. It is a form of boxing where you fight with punches and feet, but it is different from other disciplines as hits with knees and elbows are forbidden. I am a silver glove, which is like black belt in the oriental disciplines, and I also taught for many years.

PRACTICE MANAGEMENT

Practice management software

Practice management software, or PMS, refers to software found in medical offices that deals with day-to-day operations, often for administrative or financial purposes. PMS includes desktop software, client-server software, and internet-based software, and can be incredibly useful for small to medium-sized practices. Discover some of the key benefits of implementing PMS into your practice below.

Efficiency

One of the greatest benefits of PMS is increased efficiency. A standardized system streamlines processes and minimizes errors, ensuring staff operates smoothly and enhancing your patients' experience by reducing wait times, allowing hassle-free scheduling, and sending appointment reminders.

EHR integration & documentation

Standardized digital systems for medical records reduce errors that come from hand-written provider notes and allow for the instant documentation of medical issues or treatment changes. Electronic health record (EHR) integration allows you to manage your clinic and patients easily under one system.

Cost-effective

An obvious perk of PMS is that it streamlines payment processes. Electronic billing services ensure the payment process is completed smoother and reimbursement happens sooner. For your clinic, organizing the entire payment process into one service online eliminates the need for paper collections, personal follow-ups, and the back-and-forth between patients, providers, and insurance companies. As a result, you save both time and money.

Focus on quality patient care

By automating processes and administrative tasks, PMS helps you to worry less about standard business activities and devote more time and energy to your patients.

Satisfaction

Automated and streamlined features help your clinic work more efficiently and effectively, boosting your employees' and your own satisfaction. For your patients, efficiency in accessing records, the ability to easily schedule appointments, and the greater focus on their care also increases satisfaction.

ST. LOUIS

Bar Les Freres & Pappy's Smokehouse

St. Louis has a vibrant and diverse culinary scene, with both popular craft breweries and renowned chefs. For an elegant night on the town, visit the Bar Les Freres. With its extravagant chandeliers, portrait-covered deep red walls, and old-world charm, you'll be hard pressed trying to find a more luxurious restaurant. Enjoy a handcrafted cocktail as you nibble on plates of caviar and steamed mussels.

For a more down-home experience, head over to Pappy's Smokehouse. After all, no trip to St. Louis is complete without some authentic St. Louis barbeque! Named Best Rib in America by the Food Network, Pappy's Memphis style BBQ is an American treat. But get there early - because all products are served fresh daily, Pappy's sometimes closes early on busy days once everything's been sold out. Make sure you get there before closing time: around 8pm Monday-Saturday, and 4pm on Sunday.

ONLY FOUND IN VIENNA!

Durchhäuser, literally translated to mean 'through-houses,' are a distinctive architectural feature of Vienna's old town. A Durchhaus is a house that connects two parallel streets and can be entered from both street sides. They are usually housed within an inner courtyard, which serves as a passage between the two streets and may contain shops or restaurants. These specialty houses are typical of Vienna and offer pedestrians an easy detour to the next street over. Enjoy a meal in the historic Gastwirt-schaft im Durchhaus, which connects Neustiftgasse to Lerchenfelder Straße. Open to the public since 1848, the restaurant is furnished in a classic Austrian design, with traditional fabrics and wood fittings. Try out local Viennese dishes in the spacious dining room, grab a drink at the bar, or cool off with a drink in the guest garden.
